CURRENT SITUATION & CHALLENGES

As the organization scales, outdated management models trigger a chain reaction.

Five core pain points intertwine to form an inefficient and high-risk operational loop, a critical bottleneck to development.

PAIN POINT 1:

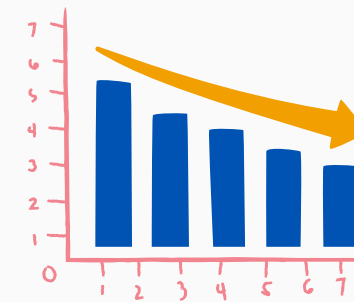

SYSTEM FRAGMENTATION & DATA SILOS

Fragmented data across isolated service centers blocks unified management views and hinders operational efficiency.

Inconsistent Data

Inaccurate tracking of students and revenue distorts operational metrics, rendering basic data valueless.

Low Efficiency

Fragmented systems cause inconsistent data and slow decisions.

Delayed Decisions

Managers lack real-time data to make agile decisions, relying instead on lagging experience reports

PAIN POINT 2:

REPETITIVE WORK & LOW EFFICIENCY

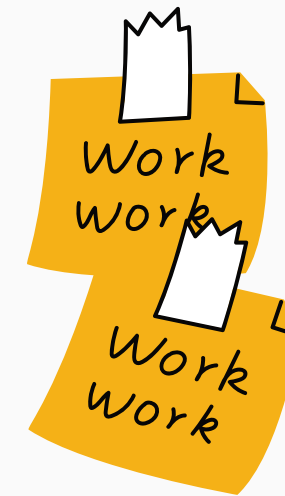

Status Quo

- Repetitive manual work wastes time and limits growth.
- The same basic information is manually transferred 2-3 times

High Time Cost, Wasted Human Potential

Excessive time consumption drains human potential and reduces overall organizational efficiency.

Repetitive Work Grows Exponentially, Restricting Expansion

Manual data entry creates errors and limits growth as business scales exponentially.

PAIN POINT 3:

HUMAN ERROR & OUTDATED INFORMATION

Manual errors reduce service quality and increase financial risk.

Service Delays

Manual errors reduce service quality and increase financial risk.

Data Asynchrony

Isolated spreadsheets waste manpower because workers must manually reconcile conflicting data records.

PAIN POINT 4:

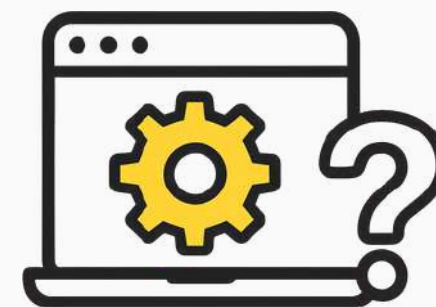

OVER-RELIANCE ON EXCEL

Excel is inefficient for collaboration and lacks core functions.

Extremely Low Collaboration Efficiency

Excel is inefficient for collaboration and lacks core functions.

Lack of Core Functions

Lacking automated tools and visual data analysis creates passive management that fails business needs

PAIN POINT 5:

DIFFICULT WORK FOLLOW-UP & HIGH ATTRITION

Current Dilemma: Lack of Management Mechanism & Vague Task Awareness

Poor workflow leads to frustration and high employee turnover.

Frustration Mounts, Motivation Wanes

Repetitive tasks and a lack of incentives drain employee enthusiasm and erode job identity.

High Talent Attrition Risk, Rising Operational Costs

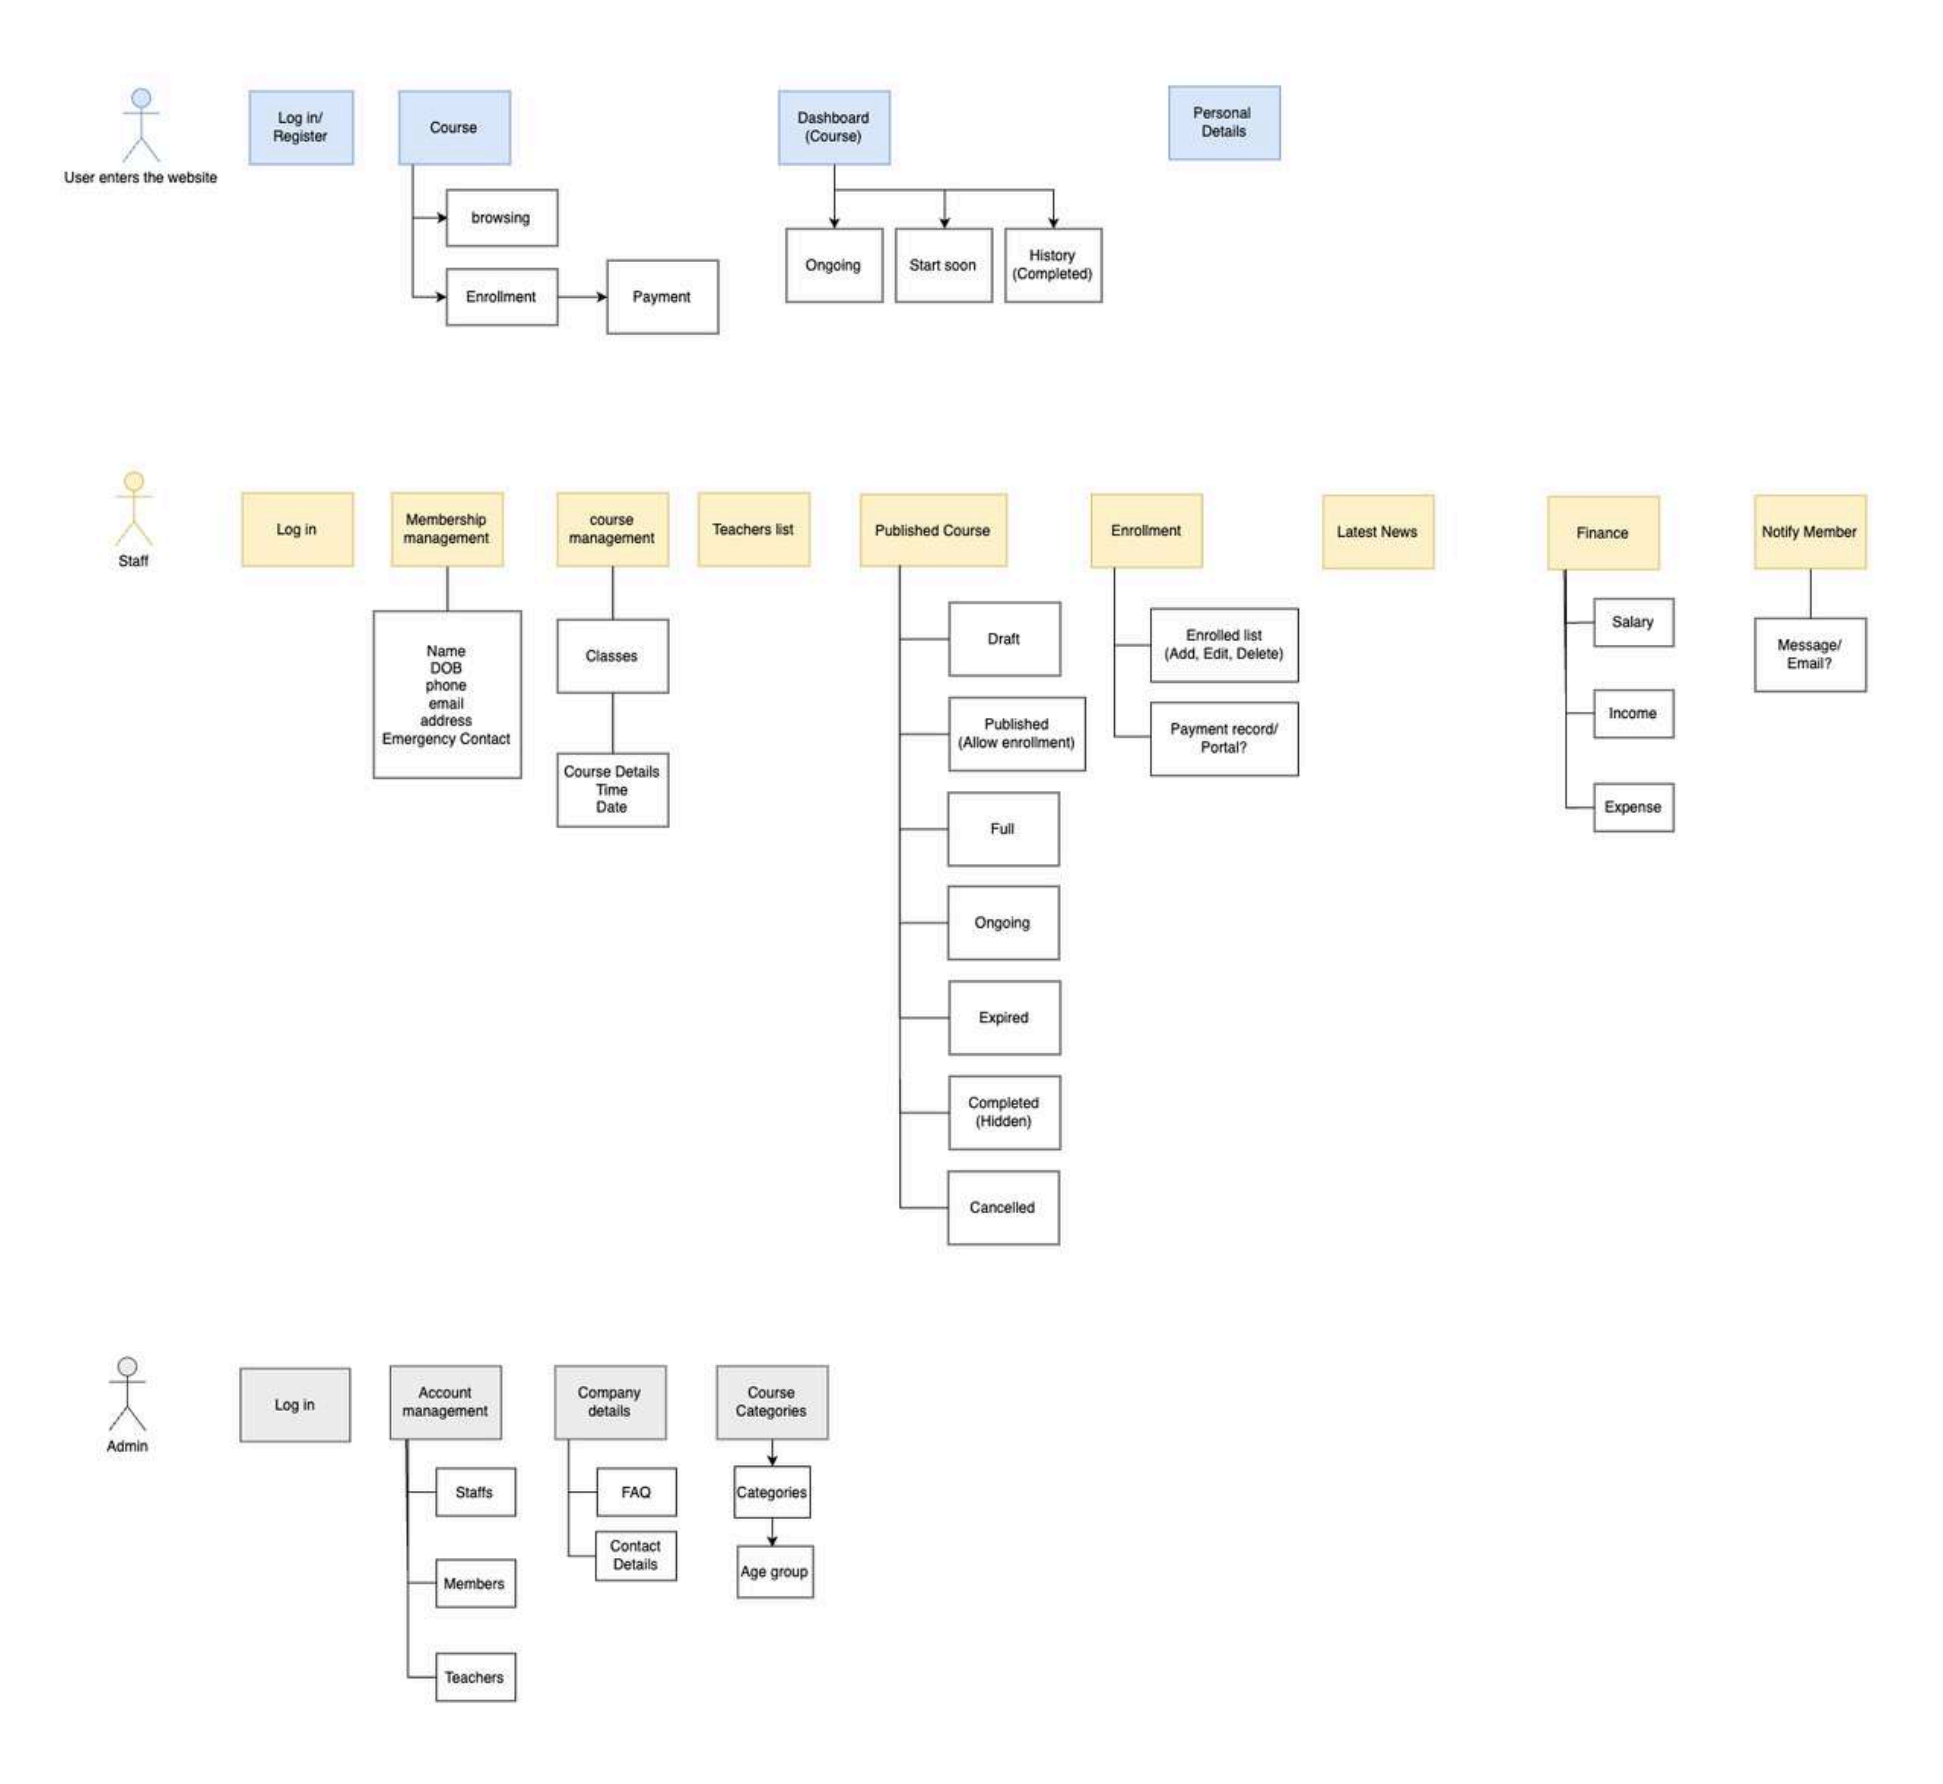

Traditional work models drive talent loss, increasing recruitment costs and destroying valuable company knowledge.
